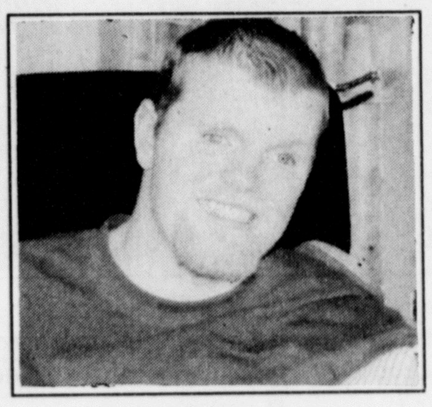
Tony Venditti: future looking much brighter

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor



TONY VENDITTI

A little over a year ago, 1998 River City High School graduate Anthony "Tony" Venditti was thrown from a flipping vehicle traveling at more than 90 miles-per-hour on Interstate 5 near Garden Highway. He was one of six passengers (mostly work friends) in a rented SUV which had only five seatbelts. Tony was seated in the car's cargo compartment at the time of the accident and when he was ejected from the vehicle he landed on the rock-hard surface of the freeway, his head and spine taking the full force of the blow. He was in a coma for months and his severe head and neck injuries left him a quadriplegic.

After lengthy stays in both the hospital and a rehabilitation center, Tony is now back home in West Sacramento and showing remarkable signs of improvement.

"Tony has been doing extremely well and we're all very proud of him," said his sister, Ranee Aldana, who has taken over the task of being Tony's primary daytime caregiver. "I have worked with a number of individuals who have suffered injuries similar to Tony's, and some of the gains he has made in just months are supposed to take years. He is sitting up for six and seven hours a day, he is eating on his own and his feeding tube is no longer needed, he is totally alert, his speech is fine, he doesn't need any assistance in breathing, he can answer his computer e-mail, he is starting to do a little writing, he enjoys the many visits he gets from his family and friends, and best of all, his attitude is completely positive."

"I guess I was home for about a month before it really hit me that I was a quadriplegic," explained Tony, "but now that the initial shock is over, I am determined to have the very best life I can. My family and my friends have been so supportive, especially my mother, who is the strongest person in the whole world. My faith has also helped me a lot, and when I'm having a bad day, I just spend some extra time praying and meditating. Most of all, though, I want to keep improving so I can get back out in the world. The California Highway Patrol wants me to do some videos for them to help explain to other young people just how important it is to always wear a seatbelt. One bad decision can change your whole life, as it did mine, and anything I can do to help others I will."

"Tony still has a lot of hard work ahead of him," said Ranee, "but his pain has continued to decrease, he's really good about wearing his arm splints so his elbows won't contract further, he does all the exercises he's supposed to do to get stronger, and he always has that famous Tony smile on his face, which makes all of us who love and take care of him feel better."

The West Sacramento house where Tony grew up and is now living has undergone quite a few changes since his arrival from the hospital. With the help of numerous donations from friends, businesses, and well-wishers, walls have been rearranged, a much larger bathroom and shower were installed, and spaces were widened to make the coming and going of Tony's wheelchair easier. "We call his room Tony's suite now," said Ranee with a smile, "but none of it would have been possible without all the help and love Tony has received from so many wonderful people."

A group of family and friends calling themselves "Tony's Angels" have organized to assist Tony in any way they can and they will be holding the "Tony Venditti Benefit Concert" on Friday, May 17th, at the Sunset Christian Center, 6900 Destiny Drive in Rocklin. It is located directly behind the Wal-Mart store on Highway 65 at Stanford Ranch Road. Choirs and bands from Sunset and Adventure Christian will put on the concert, and it is an event suitable to all age groups from all walks of life. Tri-Tip sandwiches will be available from 6-7 p.m. and the concert will be from 7-9 p.m. A love offering will be taken at the concert to help pay for Tony's many needs.

"A number of other fundraisers are being planned for the future," explained Tony's mother, Carolyn, "and the hope is to someday be able to purchase an electric wheelchair and a wheelchair accessible van for Tony so he can start getting out and about. He's doing so well at home that we're all confident that it's just a matter of time before he's back in college and working and having the kind of life he has always wanted."

"I'm very thankful just to be alive," said Tony at the end of the interview, "and please make sure you tell all your readers, young and old, to always wear their seatbelts. No exceptions!"

For more information about the May 17th Tony Venditti Benefit Concert and other planned fundraisers, you can call Tony's aunt, Gayle Bohlmann at 624-7154 or visit the official Tony Venditti website at www.tonyv98.com. Tony can also be reached by email at tonyv98@att.net.

Controversial concrete plant heads for Stockton

A highly-contested construction project has opted to go to Stockton instead of West Sacramento.

John Sulpizio, director of the Port of Sacramento, announced the loss of the Kiewit Pacific project in an email sent out on Friday.

"Port staff met with Kiewit this morning and were advised that Kiewit has decided to locate its construction site for the new Bay Bridge at a site in Stockton," wrote Sulpizio. "Interestingly, this site is not one of the original three sites that were under consideration. Rather, this site came to their attention during their recent due diligence period."

The company, which plans to build 750-ton bridge sections and barge them to the new Bay Bridge site, had previously considered the port in West Sacramento along with maritime sites in Stockton in Alameda.

The "compelling factor" in the company's final choice, said Sulpizio, was that the soil at the new Stockton site was already well-compacted from previous industrial use during construction of the Alaska pipeline. The compaction would make it easier and safer to transport the huge concrete bridge sections.

In West Sacramento, a battle was waged during the past few months over whether the Kiewit plant was permitted by city zoning rules, or whether it would require a special "conditional use permit." Sulpizio and local labor organizers successfully fought for a determination by West Sacramento's planning commission and city council that the plant was "permitted."

The other Stockton and Alameda sites, including the final winner, all determined that the plant would need a special permit in their jurisdictions. The permit opens the door for negotiations and restrictions on the plant's operations.

"Although the project will require a conditional use permit on (the final) site," wrote Sulpizio, "there is a high degree of confidence that the permit can be obtained from the City of Stockton in a timely basis."

Sulpizio said he was "disappointed" at losing the proposed lease to Kiewit Pacific, but grateful to those who had fought for it.

"I am also confident other opportunities will be discovered," he wrote.

A press release from Kimber Goddard and Derek Backus of the West Sacramento Quality Urbanization and Development (WS-QUAD) group said the group was "pleased" that the project went elsewhere.

"WS-QUAD has argued vigorously that the project was wrong for West Sacramento and that the Port of Sacramento site should never have been a 'permitted' use under our zoning laws," the release stated.

The group said the city council's decision to "grease the skids" for the project had been "indicative of our traditional over-zealousness to attract heavy industry without adequate consideration for citizen safeguards."

The group is continuing with plans to bring forward a ballot initiative to reduce future industrial development in Southport and the rest of West Sacramento.

Port expects loss for fiscal year

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

John Sulpizio, director of the Port of Sacramento, reported a "very challenging" financial year for the port, in a presentation to the institution's governing commission Monday in West Sacramento.

Sulpizio's report commented that he expects a loss of about $500,000 for the current fiscal year, which ends in June.

"The year will end with a posting of a loss, the first loss in seven years," said Sulpizio's report. "Our cargo forecast for the end of the year is approximately 860,000 tons; however, the billing mix will be unable to push a profit, and therefore, we are forecasting a net loss of approximately $500,000."

The port director could not be reached for additional detail as the News-Ledger went to press yesterday morning. But it appeared from the port's financial summary that the projected loss would be about twice as large as Sulpizio projected if not for the sale of port real estate, creating "other income" of $555,000.

The year-to-date loss from port operations alone through March was $922,857. After factoring in proceeds from the land sales, the reported loss was only $367,857 through March.

The report added that a "global economic downturn" contributed to the

Coolant leaks into building's water lines

Officials believe problem local & minor

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

"Triangle Court" nearly became "Triangle Creek" on April 30, as city officials flushed fire hydrants to clean out a water supply feared tainted by a coolant compound.

As of yesterday, city and county officials were awaiting final confirmation that the buildings on the street had a clean water supply, so Triangle Court tenants could stop drinking bottled water and the city could release the water sprayed from fire hydrants into the storm drain system.

The leak of ethylene glycol was discovered after employees at Level 3 Communications, 1075 Triangle Ct., noticed a brown color to the building's water supply about a week earlier. Samples drawn on April 24 later showed a level of 59 milligrams per liter to 76 milligrams per liter in the building's water supply. There is no drinking water standard for the substance, but the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has a health advisory level of 14 milligrams per liter for ethylene glycol, said Dan Mount of the city's water services department.

"It was in a recirculating system for cooling fiberoptics for computers," at Level 3 Communications, said Mount.

There was never an indication that the contamination affected any neighboring buildings, and there have been no reported health problems from the leak.

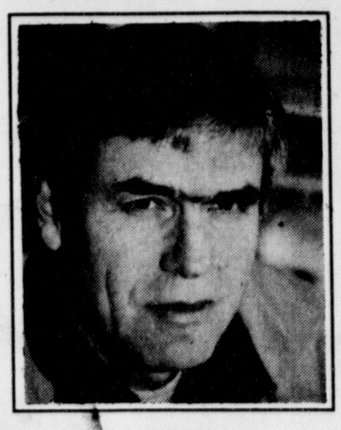
The contamination stemmed from an improper plumbing connection which has been fixed, he added.

"Backflow prevention" systems in the area all appear to be working, said Mount, and the contamination is not believed to have made it into the city water system at large.

The Triangle Court area is located west of Jefferson Blvd., between Sacramento Ave. and West Capitol Ave. The street includes businesses, as well as the city police department and a county office complex.

Don't be forgetting to send that Mother's Day card!

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

With Mother's Day just around the corner, here is a little Mother's Day column I wrote a decade or so ago about my own mother, Jean Fisher, who along with my father, Robert, lived in West Sacramento for almost half a century. They moved to this area right after World War II, bought what was then a brand new little tract house on Michigan Boulevard (if I remember right, it cost less than $10,000), and began raising their family. And since being a good mother has always been the most important thing in my mom's life, here is my top ten list of things which make her so special:

#10: I have always had a head the size of a bowling ball, so I guess it's fair to say that even from the very beginning, I have been a real pain to my mother, yet she continues to put up with me.

#9: When I was three years old, I fell out of the back of my parents' car (although I still think I was pushed out by my twin sister, Cheryl, even if I have never been able to prove it) which was going about 55 MPH on the freeway. Thankfully, I landed on my hard head, bounced off the asphalt, and ended up in a ditch. It was my poor mother who had to police up what was left of me and hold my bloody head in her lap as my dad raced for the nearest hospital.

#8: When I was a teenager, it was always my mother who waited up for me to get home, no matter how late I dragged in from a date or a night out on the town, refusing to go to sleep until I was safely in the house.

#7: It was mom who always used up all her spare money picking out new school clothes for me and my sister and brother, never buying anything for herself.

#6: It was my mother who had to read the telegram from the US Army notifying her that I had been wounded in Vietnam, thinking all the time that such a telegram meant, as it had in World War Two, that her son was dead.

#5: It was mom who had to wait patiently until I was almost 27 before I finally got married and forked over one of the few things she had ever wanted for herself, a granddaughter.

#4: It's my mother who digs deep into her and my father's savings each year to make sure that all of their seven grandkids have a wonderful Christmas.

#3: It's mom who always works so hard at all the family gatherings, especially Thanksgiving, making sure there are more good things to eat than anyone could possibly digest.

#2: It was mom who taught me how to properly interact with my brother by always saying, "If you're going to kill each other, please do it outside, because I can't afford to buy a bunch of new furniture."

#1: And finally, the number one reason my mom is so special is that she has somehow managed to put up with my dad for almost 70 years (they first met when they were in grade school together in a little rural town in Missouri) and as he would be the first to admit, if for no other reason, she definitely deserves a medal for that.

The other evening, I was talking to a friend who, like me, has a mom that has always put being the best possible mother she can be at the very top of her list of priorities, when the subject of Mother's Day came up.

"Are you going to do anything special this year for Mother's Day?" he asked me.

"No, not really," I admitted. "But my wife sent my mother a really nice card."

"My mom really likes to get a card on Mother's Day, too," said my friend. "She used to always say that 'When all my sons are grown up and on their own, I just hope I will have done a good enough job for all of them to want to send me a nice card on Mother's Day, and actually mean what it says on the inside."

So, Mom, since I don't have the foggiest idea what was written on the inside of that darn Mother's Day card Mary mailed you a few days ago, this little column about what a great mom you are will have to do. And the next time I do something inconsiderate (and we both know you won't have to wait too long), just remember that like all really special mothers, you were always there when I needed you, and there were even times when you were the only wind under my wings.

"Kings Korner"

Nobody said it would be easy for the Sacramento Kings in the second round of the 2002 playoffs! The Lakers may have an easy time disposing of the San Antonio Spurs but the Kings and Mavericks will be a knockdown drag out fight at the OK Corral.

Something had to give between these two high scoring teams. Dallas has the best road record (27-14) in the league while the Kings hold the best home court record and the advantage throughout their playoff run.

The Sacramento Kings and the Dallas Mavericks are all tied up and one game apiece in this best of seven series. The two powerhouse scoring teams exchanged a barrage of points with the Kings winning game one 108-91 while Dallas took game two with a 110-102 victory.

Steve Nash led the way with 30 points and eight assists in an impressive performance, and Dirk Nowitzki added 22 points and 15 rebounds for the Mavericks. The Kings did a great job of holding Nash to 12 points in Game 1, but he came out firing along with his teammates to win game two. Nash took control of the game in the fourth quarter with his off balance shooting skills hitting four 3-pointers and was 12-of-18 from the field.

The Kings on the other hand fell asleep in the second half of the game two. Peja Stojakovic, who had 26 points in Game 1, went 5-for-19 from the field and finished with 14 points and 12 rebounds. In the first half the Kings hit 22 of 35 shots (62%) but only sank 16 of 58 attempts (27%) in the second half. C-Webb hit 4-15 while Peja and Bibby only sank 2 of their last 11 shots.

Hedo Turkoglu had 15 points in a reserve role. Vlade Divac had 15 points, but his role was reduced from Game 1 sitting the bench for most of the fourth quarter as Adelman attempted to match up with Dallas' unique collection of scorers. Dallas head coach, Don Nelson, outcoached Adelman in the second half with some key matchups that harassed the Kings shooters from the 3-point line.

The Kings' three-game winning streak ended with their fifth loss in their last eight home playoff games dating to last season. The series, tied at one game apiece, moves to the American Airlines Center in Dallas for Game 3 on Thursday night (6:30- ch.31/TNT) and Game 4 on Saturday afternoon (12:30 ?ch.3). Game 5 will be at Arco next Monday night, May 13th (6 p.m.).

The home court advantage will shift to Dallas this week but don't worry, this series will go to the Kings in seven games!

"Boxing"

The bad news for boxing promoter Don Chargin continues for his boxing doubleheader on May 16th and 17th at the Memorial Auditorium in Sacramento.

Last week Juan Lazcano dropped out of his May 16th date with the flu bug and now Willie Jorrin has injured his foot in training so his championship fight is postponed until further notice. The West Sacramento fighter's foot and ankle injury may put him on the shelf for up to six months.

But never fear the "Boxing Hall of Fame" promoter has come up with an even better fight card for ESPN and the Sacramento boxing fans. On Thursday, May 16th upcoming boxing sensation from Placerville, Carlos Borjorquez (18-3-5, 14 KO's) will tangle in the main

RC wins league

Leading 9 to 6 and up 40-15 on his serve, River City High School tennis team senior Tuan Nguyen had three straight match points against Vanden's#2 boys doubles team last week. A victory by Nguyen and his partner, Sou Saejao, would clinch not only the overall team match against the visiting Vikings, but also the 2002 Golden Empire League West Championship for the Raiders. Nguyen promptly hit an unreturnable service ace to end the match and give R.C. its 7th consecutive league title.

The day's final score against second-place Vanden was 6 to 3 as the Raiders were led by senior tri-captains Nguyen, Saejao, and Keonakone Lattasima. Another senior, #2 boys singles player Marith Khem, also played one of his best matches of the season.

Other Raider wins came from William Clayton and Bhaves Patel, Nai Saelee and Nikki Hansen, and Danny Beus and Mai Ker Yang.

The Raiders wrapped up a perfect league (15 and 0) and overall (24 and 0) season with a 9 to 0 shutout of visiting Lindhurst last Thursday. Lattasima's 6-1,6-2 win in the top girls singles position was her record-breaking 88th individual match victory. Former teammate Sokpin Phoung won 87 matches from 1998-2001. It was the last home match for eleven seniors on the RC team.

With the league crown in the bag and the regular season over, the Raiders will spend the next two weeks in individual singles and doubles tournaments beginning with the GEL West Tournament at Lindhurst this Thursday and Friday. The Sac-Joaquin Section Division III team playoffs do not begin for another two weeks.

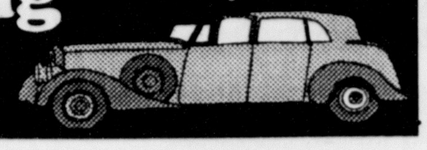
DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

Touring with Teddi

by Teddi Boylan



Columnist Teddi Boylan brings you her recommendations of places to dine and places to visit in the greater West Sacramento area. Her travels include both stops at our advertisers' establishments and other institutions. Enjoy!

I am willing to bet most of you have never heard of Copperopolis, California.

Copperopolis is located in Calaveras County, the spoke of the Gold Rush trail along with Arnold, Murphy's, Vallecito, and last but not least, Angels Camp. If you have ever read Bret Hart's story, "Outcasts of Poker Flat," where the Lake Tullocks Poker Flat Lodge is located, and have visited the area, you can indeed appreciate the magnificent scenery. The lodge serves three meals daily in its dining room. You can enjoy the large swimming pool and jacuzzi on a warm summer day.

Or perhaps you like to fish? You can use a boat, or fish right from the shore. To learn more about the Poker Flat Lodge, call (209) 785-2286.

A little closer to home is Eppie's Restaurant on West Capitol Ave. the new owners have it sparkling clean, with lots of greenery. The stools at the counter are unusual in that they have full backs on them for added comfort.

They serve Superior coffee, and it is really "superior."

I had the senior breakfast for only $3.99 plus coffee. The senior menu for lunch is $4.49 to $5.19, and dinner from $5.59 to $6.69. The regular breakfast menu runs $5.99 to $7.99 (for a ribeye steak). A burger with fries for lunch is only $5.19, and a rib eye steak dinner is $8.99 or $10.99, depending on size. There is plenty of parking, easy access to the freeway, and a comfortable motel right next door. What more could you want?

Hours are Mon.-Fri., 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., and weekends 6 a.m. to 11 p.m.

There's still time to make that Mother's Day reservation at Morrison's in Woodland; Gorman's in Yolo; or right here in West Sacramento at Carol's Restaurant, Westside Pub & Grill or Nick's Diner.

I noticed the other day that Pooja Indian Grill has opened up its patio for dining – what a pretty setting on a sunny day.

There's still time to make your reservation for Gorman's Gourmet Dinner on May 21. The cost is $100 per person, and proceeds go to the Michael Phillips heart fund. Gorman's can be reached at (530) 662-6889.

Hey, all you would-be Sinatras and Clooneys: time to get over to the Silver Spur Lounge on Thursday nights. Things are really starting to happen. Pat and Dave have been working harder than ever to make it one of your favorite "watering holes." Pat says she's trying to get the kitchen open by the end of May so they can offer you food as well as fun and friends.

Next time you're down in Old Sacramento, be sure to stop in at the Café New Orleans on J Street. Plenty of hot & spicy Cajun food, and room for private parties. Call Susan at 443-5051 for reservations.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

The dust settles

One of West Sacramento's fiercest battles in recent years just ended; a concrete-casting plant courted by the Port of Sacramento has chosen to go to Stockton instead. The debate shaped up with port officials and its affiliated labor unions on one side, and the WS-QUAD citizens' group on the other.

There's plenty to say about the quick-but-bloody battle. Here are a few musings:

■ Locally, the battle shaped up over whether or not the plant would need a "conditional use permit" from the city. A "CUP" would have given West Sacramento some negotiating room and control over the plant's operating conditions, including, for example, hours of use. The port and labor unions both feared that the permit requirement would slow down the project and endanger its chances of coming to West Sacramento.

All three other sites in contention for the plant, however, required such a special permit. West Sacramento's planning director thought one should be needed here as well – but the city's planning commission and city council members unanimously overruled him.

Your elected and appointed leaders, for better or worse, were willing to have less control over the project's impacts than were their counterparts in Stockton and Alameda.

■ Both sides spent a huge amount of political capital in this battle, lobbying city officials over the permit issue. Both sides successfully flexed a lot of muscle. Their tactics earned respect, but little love.

■ Rushing the project to a "yes" decision on the zoning issue was supposed to be necessary to keep the developer from going elsewhere. So West Sacramento rushed to approve the zoning determination, despite an admission by many of the local officials that they didn't fully understand the project.

Following the rush to make the proponents happy, nothing happened. Then the project went away anyway.

■ It's hard for any outsider to judge precisely why the plant chose Stockton, and how much of a factor was the continued opposition to the Kiewit Pacific plant from WS-QUAD, which had vowed to fight on in the courts. It is possible that this was a major factor.

■ In retrospect, the project would have had better local prospects had the port and labor unions not fought to the death against a conditional use permit requirement. The permit itself probably wouldn't have endangered the proposal, and would have defused some of the local opposition to the plant.

Kiewit Pacific may be gone, but it has left us with a set of lessons to try to learn.

Letters to the Editor

Old versus new residents

Letters to the Editor in the News-Ledger the last few weeks has had me rolling on the ground in laughter with the comments from both sides about what is "right" for West Sacramento. To the "Quad Squad", there are people living among you who are "longtime residents" of West Sacramento. Not people with a history of 1.3 years as I read one person write, but second, third, and fourth generation. I'm a transplant from "old" West Sacramento to "new" Southport. My parents are both transplants from "old" Broderick to "new" West Sacramento in 1956. My grandmother was born and raised in Washington, soon to be "new" Broderick. I went to school with a few members of the city council. I know personally that their parents are also from our fine city of West Sacramento. From the remarks I hear from the QUAD folks, I feel they think the city council is trying to destroy the very land they were raised on.

To the "island" people I would like to say get acquainted with the residents of this fine city. Don't move here with the idea of changing our town into Folsom or Elk Grove. If this is your intent, move there, because the rest of us like the slowed-down community of this area. To understand our mindset, read some of the articles in the section "My Back Pages" of the News-Ledger, authored by a fine longtime resident of West Sacramento, Daryl Fisher. The attitude he projects in his articles is right on.

To the people referred to as "longtime residents living in dumps", be grateful those unaffordable homes look more like duplexes than your 1/3rd acre homes, which were built on good river topsoil, not the adobe clay of the "Quad" land. Instead of waking up with your next-door neighbor looking through your kitchen window, you have enough room to park that motor home or fishing boat.

Everyone living in West Sacramento, whether it is behind the walls of the "Island Community" or in the "Old West Sacramento" area, be careful what you wish for, because you might get it.

KENNY MOORE

Become informed

I am a two year resident here in Southport, and though I may be a relative "newcomer", my eyes are open to the incongruities of what was and what is to be. As a community, it is a moot point concerning what West Sacramento may have been to some "old time" residents inasmuch as the advertising for the development of Southport was clearly aimed to attract a different demographic group, for better or worse, which titillated with opportunity, prosperity, and promise. It seems pretty clear to me that, upon the influx of a new demographic into the region, change is imminent. We all have our dreams.

QUAD is not trying to kill the port. QUAD is holding the elected city/planning officials accountable for responsible industry development by defining as best they can, for the rest of us, what may be detrimental or beneficial in regards to the industrial development of the port. It truly is each individual's responsibility to get educated concerning any matter that impacts community. Opinions abound in the public arena of the debatable and hypothetical -- therefore it behooves the individual in the end to check it out.

Finally, "the way it was" and "the way it will be" is yet to be seen. What is at stake is our quality of life as a community; so get references, sources of information, and educated regarding what is to be, or not to be, before jumping on somebody's bandwagon.

We don't live in dumps!

To that young man who lives in Bridgeway Island, Steve Ungles, I'm sure grateful that you live where you do, and are not my next-door neighbor. I don't know how old you are, but you sound like you're about five, with no respect for others.

For one thing, we here on the north side do not live in dumps. Yes, a lot of our homes are old, like yours will be someday. We live in homes that have raised wonderful families and we love where we live.

Although many of us can't afford to buy a home where you live, who wants to live next door to the likes of you. Too bad Bridgeway Island is not a real island where you could live all alone. And you don't seem very smart to me if you could be sucked in by a real estate agent to buy where you did.

When I bought my house here on the north side I read everything before I purchased it. I have the best folks in all the world living around me. When I walk my dog at night, I see elders like myself walking to and from the church. It's nice to know that we are safe. Plus the new city hall is on the north side, as is Raley's Field, the Veteran's Plaza,

Schools get official notice of honor

As expected (see News-Ledger, April 24), two West Sacramento schools have been named as the only two Yolo County "distinguished schools" last week. The honor was given after a screening process by the office of Delaine Easton, state superintendent of instruction. It qualifies the winners, Westmore Oaks and Southport elementary schools, to compete for the federal education department's "blue ribbon" award.

Southport and Westmore Oaks schools were among 247 state-wide winners selected from among 700 applicants in the state's pool of 5,000 elementary schools.

"I am extremely proud of the accomplishments of the students, teachers, and parents," said Westmore Oaks principal Eileen Kleiser in a school district press release. "Everyone works as a family to provide an outstanding education for students."

Southport's principal, Diane Smith, also commented.

"We're very excited, proud and pleased. It's an honor for everybody in the Southport community, but the real credit goes to the students, who did a great job."

The schools will receive their awards at a May 24 ceremony at Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim.

Two Westmore personnel to receive honors

Two Westmore Oaks Elementary School employees will be honored at a district function on May 14 at Raley Field.

Karen Suhr will receive honors as "support certificated employee of the year" for Washington Unified School District, and third-grade teacher Karen Laughlin will be named "Teacher of the Year."

The school itself was just named a "California Distinguished School."

Fighting the fires' damage

SIRENS AND LIGHTS engaged, a parade of dozens of firefighting vehicles made its way along West Capitol Ave. Saturday afternoon on its way to the state capitol in Sacramento. The parade constituted the annual Firefighters Burn Brigade, helping to raise funds for the Firefighters Burn Institute, a California charity. The organization provides recovery services for burn survivors, funds burn-related medical research and promotes fire prevention. Saturday's festivities also involved a pre-parade barbecue at the Port of Sacramento and attendance by many participant at a River Cats baseball game.

A 54-year old man was arrested for punching his live-in girlfriend in the mouth, knocking her to the ground and injuring her.

May 5, 3:40 p.m.

On West Capitol Ave., two suspects approached to victims. One suspect put a screwdriver to the neck of one victim, and the other suspect held a small-caliber handgun to the chest of the other victim. The suspects demanded money and were given about $300. They fled eastbound in a car.

May 5, 3:50 p.m.

Police took a report of "road rage" near Linden Rd. and Jefferson Blvd. The suspect reportedly brandished a pair of knives during the traffic-related incident. The suspect was last seen entering eastbound US 50 from Jefferson Blvd.

May 5, 8:30 p.m.

An officer contacted a 20-year old man after a 13-year old boy reported the man had slapped him. The boy's mother did not want to press charges, but the 20-year old was arrested for appearing intoxicated and "unable to care for himself."

Rice facts & figures

(NAPS)—With more than 1,400 entries and $10,000 in cash prizes awarded, the USA Rice Federation has published a new brochure featuring winning recipes chosen for its third annual "Rice to the Rescue!" contest.

The brochure, "Award-Winning Rice Recipes," is available free, and includes six original recipes, along with photographs of each dish. All of the winning recipes can be made in 30 minutes or less with no more than six ingredients.

First place and $5,000 was awarded to David Brown of Grass Valley, Calif., for his Creamy Pancetta Rice, a rich, creamy rice dish featuring pistachios, pancetta and dried cranberries. The incredible flavor combination, ease of preparation and eye appeal were all contributing factors in awarding Brown top honors.

Five finalists, each receiving $1,000, were also chosen:

- Julie DeMatteo of Clementon, N.J., was named as a finalist with Rice Tabbouleh, a terrific new twist on a Middle Eastern dish traditionally made with bulgur.
- Patricia Harmon of Baden, Pa., won with her Cheesy Poblano Rice Soup, an original recipe inspired by flavors of the southwest.
- Mary Louis Lever of Rome, Ga., also won with a soup recipe—Senegalese Peanut Soup with Spicy Rice Timbales—a pretty and flavorful soup that's sure to please both kids and adults alike.
- For those who enjoy and appreciate the ease of main dish salads, Sharyn Hill of Organ, N.M., created a winning combination with Wild Thyme Summer Salad, featuring the dynamic duo—chicken and rice—with flavors from the Mediterranean.
- Christine Riccitelli of Danville, Calif., was also a finalist with her creation of Chocolate Macaroon Rice Pudding, a flavorful recipe featuring coconut and chocolate.

"The versatility and convenience of rice continues to gain importance as more and more cooks look for ways to get meals on the table quickly and are doing so by combining rice with flavor-packed convenience products, such as salsas, roasted chicken, frozen vegetable mixes, etc." says Kimberly Park, director of national consumer education programs for USA Rice. "One-dish meals also proved popular as evidenced by the vast number of entries for casseroles, skillet meals, paella, risotto, wraps and, of course, rice bowls."

Rice is a versatile staple food which can be used in everything from soup to salad to dessert.

For a free copy of all the winning rice recipes, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: "Award-Winning Rice Recipes 3," c/o USA Rice Federation, P.O. Box 740121, Houston, TX 77274, or visit the Have A Rice Day Café online at www.ricecafe.com.

and the River Walk.

Yes, Mr. Ungles, you have a lot to learn about us West Sacramento residents. And one more thing, casinos don't bring crime, people do. If they do build a casino here, I'll be able to walk to it from my home, and I wouldn't mind being the doorman who welcomes all the people, because Americans love gaming. I wouldn't even be surprised if you make a bet once in awhile yourself.

Port land needs rezoning

Now that the Port of Stockton has been chosen by Kiewit Pacific for its new cement plant (enabling KP to rebuild the SF Bay Bridge), the next logical step is to rezone much of the Port of Sacramento land to encourage development more compatible to nearby homes and schools. Think tourism and retail. We already have that second, but little-utilized bridge to and from the Southport area. The site of the former city hall would seem ideal for a tourist/shopper information center.

If the rezoning does not come from our elected officials (and soon), it will likely come via the initiative process. The Port of Sacramento is ailing financially, and it would seem prudent for port management to encourage rezoning and development that would be welcomed by nearby residents; hence, a healthier port pocketbook. A new shopping center would allow residents of newly built and existing homes to shop with greater ease and less smog. More sales tax revenue will also help the city budget. Better soon than later, too.
